

How to Choose the License of Voice Changer for Skype

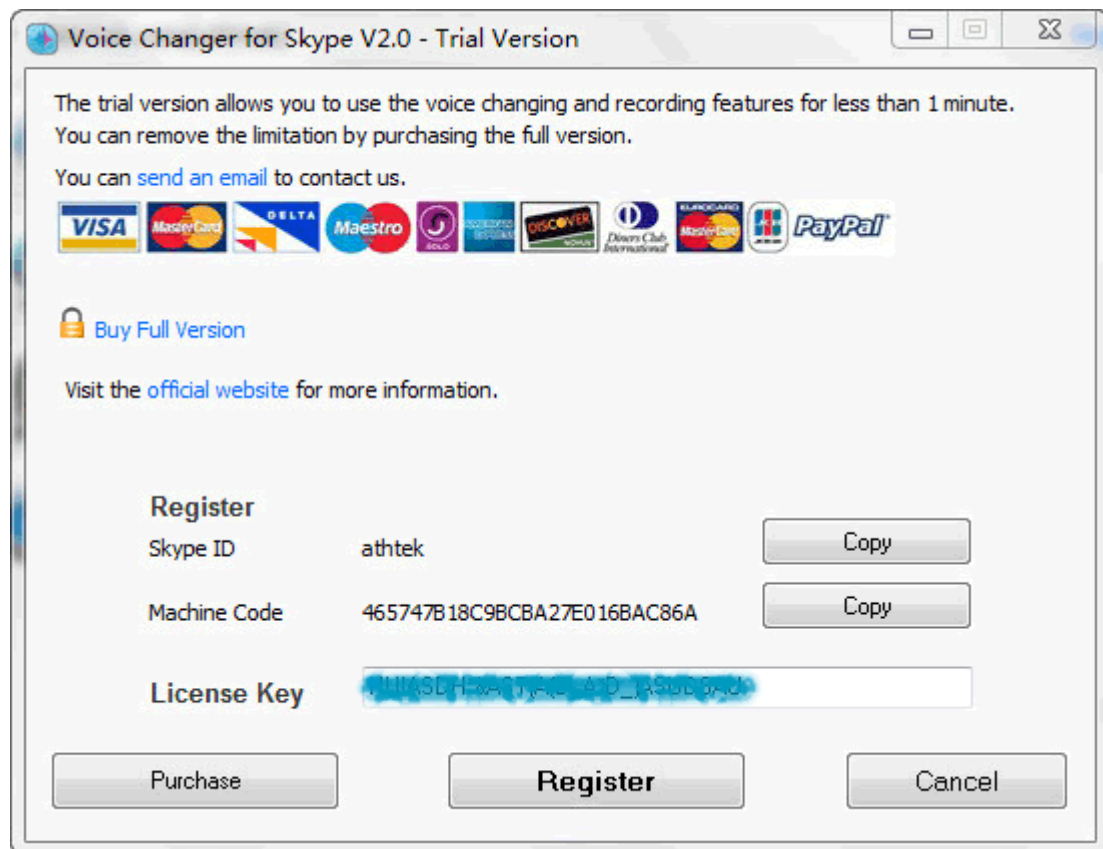

When you are going to buy a license for Voice Changer for Skype, you will see 2 license types with the same price ($29.95) for you to select. Both the license types are able to activate a full version of Voice Changer for Skype, but there are some differences between the license types. It is recommended to read the following article to learn what the differences are and which license type you should take.

ID-License:

If you are purchasing an ID-License, you will be asked to input a Skype ID (account name) to generate a license key. ID- License will be associated to the Skype account and the user will be able to use Voice Changer for Skype on any computer with the Skype account. If you have only one Skype account but multiple computers, ID-License would be exactly the one you should choose. If you used Skype through MSN account, your Skype ID should be started with “live:”. You can find exactly the Skype ID in authorization window:

PC-License:

If you are purchasing a PC-License, you will be asked to input the Machine Code to generate a license key. PC-License will be associated to a specific computer and enables user to use Voice Changer for Skype with any Skype accounts on the computer. If you have multiple Skype accounts but an only computer, PC-License would be exactly the one you should choose. Machine Code is an exclusive serial code of your computer and you can also find it on the authorization window.

But if you have multiple Skype accounts and multiple computers to use, which license type should you choose? ID-License will be the recommended choice. You will be able purchase the licenses with 50% OFF price from the second license. And you are able to buy the licenses on any computer with the Skype IDs. If you buy multiple PC-Licenses, you will have to buy them on each computer separately.
